Brief description of the event – A One day Workshop titled "Digital Hygiene and Understanding Misinformation" was organised by the Department of Journalism and Mass Communication, RKSMVV in collaboration with IQAC on 02/12/22. The speaker Mr. Joydeep Das Gupta was brilliant and explained beautifully how to understand the misinformation in the pool of digital media channels. Being a representative of Google Network, he mainly focused on identification of Fake news on Google. Our eminent speaker explained that false or misleading information that poses as reliable news is referred to as fake news. Fake news typically belongs to one of two categories:

- Stories that are purposefully erroneous, meaning that the authors are aware of their falsity yet choose to publish them anyhow. This could be done to influence public opinion or increase visitors to a certain website.
- Narratives with some truth to them, but largely false. This could occur from the author's failure to verify all of their information or from their exaggeration of some details in order to support a point.

Outcomes- The Workshop was very insightful for the students. Our students obtained a lot of information from the workshop. The term "fake news" was first used in the 19th century, so students learned that misinformation is not a new phenomenon, but that its creation and dissemination have changed as a result of the internet and social media. Before the internet, news was typically obtained via reliable media outlets whose reporters had to abide by stringent ethical standards. With few editorial standards or oversight, the internet made it possible to produce, exchange, and consume news and information in new ways. Nowadays, a lot of people get their news from social media and other online sources, but it's not always simple to tell which stories are true and which are not. All the four teachers and students were present and did all the Hands-on activities enthusiastically.
