Date: 18.06.2024

Organizing Unit: The Department of Philosophy, RKSMVV

Topic: Bertrand Russell

Number of participants: 28 students of UG Semester II, VI & IV

Name of the speaker: Prof. Subir Ranjan Bhattacharya, Retired Professor of Philosophy, at Calcutta University.

Venue: Room no. 7, RKSMVV

Time: 10:30 am onwards

Brief Description of the event: The Department of Philosophy at RKSMVV organised an insightful Extension Lecture on the works of the eminent philosopher Bertrand Russell, with a special focus on his views on Induction. The lecture was delivered by Prof. Subir Ranjan Bhattacharya, a distinguished scholar known for his clarity and depth of understanding. In this engaging session, Prof. Bhattacharya provided a detailed exploration of Russell's philosophical works, particularly highlighting key concepts from Russell's seminal text, The Problems of Philosophy. He meticulously explained the principle of induction, which is central to Russell's epistemology, and its implications for our understanding of knowledge and scientific inquiry.

Programme Outcome: The students benefitted immensely from this lecture. They were exposed to an in-depth analysis of Russell's philosophy, with Prof. Bhattacharya's clear and lucid explanations enhancing their comprehension of complex philosophical ideas. The lecture not only deepened their understanding of Bertrand Russell's approach to philosophy but also encouraged them to critically engage with philosophical texts and concepts. Overall, the event was a significant academic enrichment for all participants.
