

Name of the event: Social Movements: Concepts and Theories

Category: Extension Lecture

Organizing Unit: Department of Human Rights, RKSMVV

Date: 14.3.2024

Time: 12.15 pm- 1.15 pm

Venue- Room No.8

Number of Resource Person: 1,

Name of resource person: Dr. Ananya Chatterjee, Assistant Professor in Sociology, Haldia Government College

Number of Participants: 35

Brief description of the event: The Human Rights department organized the extension lecture on 14th March 2024. The topic was Social Movements: Concepts and Theories. Social movement is an important topic in the Human rights syllabus, including peasant movement, environment and ecological movement, women's movement, tribal & Dalit movement, civil rights movement and many more. The students gained insights into the different theories of social movements also.

Programme Outcome: In this extension lecture the students got a lot of insight into how different movements affected the society at the same time they can understand that the impacts of several social movements also played important roles in building a new society and civilisation. As a result, participating students will be aware of the different facts and events of social phenomena and they will analyze any future social phenomena with different perspectives.

