

Name of the event: Micro-teaching on ‘Achena moner Ajana Katha’

Category: Microteaching

Topic: ‘Achena moner Ajana Katha’

Organizing Unit: Department of Philosophy

Date: 12.7.24

Venue: Room no. 25

No. of Participants: 21 (Semester II and IV of the Department of Philosophy and Semester II students of Education.)

Brief Description of the event: The students of Semester IV from the Department of Philosophy organized a micro-teaching program focused on the topic of Consciousness. The event showcased the student’s academic skills and their ability to present complex philosophical concepts in an engaging and accessible manner. To enhance their presentation, the students utilized ICT tools, preparing a well-structured PowerPoint presentation that effectively highlighted the key aspects of their topic. The micro-teaching session included interactive discussions, visual aids, and poster presentations that made the learning experience both comprehensive and dynamic.

Program Outcome: The students demonstrated a strong grasp of the subject matter, conveying intricate ideas with clarity and confidence. The micro-teaching programme provided the students with a valuable opportunity to develop a range of skills essential for their academic and professional growth. They learned the importance of teamwork, effective communication, and collaborative effort in group settings. Additionally, the exercise allowed them to refine their abilities in preparing PowerPoint presentations and articulating their ideas visually through posters. Overall, the programme significantly contributed to their confidence and competence in both individual and collective academic tasks.

Flyer and Geo-tagged photos:

