Brief description of the event: A Microteaching session was conducted by Semester I students on the philosophical topic "Cogito Ergo Sum" ("I think, therefore I am"), a foundational statement by René Descartes. The event aimed to foster teaching and presentation skills among students while deepening their understanding of philosophical concepts. Students actively participated by teaching and explaining the topic in front of peers and faculty. Teaching aids such as posters and PowerPoint presentations were effectively used to illustrate key ideas. The session encouraged peer learning, public speaking, and the ability to simplify complex philosophical concepts for better understanding.

Programme Outcome: The microteaching activity proved to be a successful learning experience. Students demonstrated commendable enthusiasm and preparation. Teachers provided constructive feedback to enhance their content delivery and communication skills. The session also strengthened students' confidence in both subject knowledge and classroom engagement.
