NSS volunteers enthusiastically participated in the initiative and served approximately 100 litres of drinking water over a period of three hours. The volunteers ensured that people waiting at the bus stand, daily commuters, drivers, traffic personnel, and passers-by received clean and refreshing drinking water.

The activity reflected the spirit of selfless service and social responsibility, encouraging students to develop empathy, teamwork, and a commitment to community welfare. The programme was well appreciated by the public and successfully fulfilled its objective of serving society through meaningful volunteerism.

- Outcomes of the Programme

The programme was conducted with the objective of providing relief to commuters, pedestrians, and local residents during the hot weather by distributing safe drinking water. The activity helped volunteers develop empathy, the true spirit of community service and humanitarian values, compassion, the values of selfless service, teamwork, and a sense of social responsibility through direct interaction with the public. By providing clean drinking water at a busy public place, the volunteers contributed to public health and comfort while creating awareness about the importance of hydration during extreme weather conditions.

The programme also strengthened the volunteers' communication, leadership, and event management skills as they efficiently coordinated the distribution process and interacted courteously with beneficiaries. The initiative fostered a positive relationship between the institution and the local community, enhancing the social outreach of RKSMVV.

It reinforced the NSS motto, "Not Me, But You," by encouraging students to dedicate their time and effort towards the welfare of society and inspired them to continue participating in meaningful community service activities.
